Y8 Term 5: The Transatlantic Slave Trade - Key Words

How has Britain distorted its role in the Transatlantic Slave Trade?

Date	Description
1492	Christopher Columbus, who worked for the Spanish, set sail across the Atlantic ocean hoping to find new routes to India and China. Instead, he found a group of islands which he called 'West Indies'. These are now the Caribbean islands.
1562	Sir John Hawkins was given permission by Elizabeth I to begin transporting captured African slaves to the West Indies. There they were sold. He is called the "father of the slave trade".
1619	Historians think that this was when slaves began to work on British plantations on North America.
1660	The Royal African Company was given a royal charter (allowed to trade) by Charles II. The company was run by his brother, James, the Duke of York (later James II, deposed in the Glorious Revolution of 1688). Between 1680 and 1688, the company transported 60,000 African slaves.
1728-39	The First Maroon War (Jamaica). The maroons were slaves who ran away to the mountains in Jamaica from 1655 and set up their own independent communities.
1760	Tacky's War. An Easter rebellion that ended in 400 executions but gave hope to other slaves.
1781	The Zong massacre was the killing of 133 African slaves by the crew of the British slave ship Zong. They were thrown overboard so that the ship owner could claim compensation from his insurance.
1787	The Society for the Abolition of the Slave Trade was set up. Its aim was to let Africans live free from the risk of capture, and outlaw their sale and slavery. They set up petitions across the UK. e.g. in 1792 alone 519 petitions were handed to Parliament demanding the abolition of the slave trade.
1791	Toussaint L'Ouverture led a slave revolt on the French island of St Dominique. The English tried to capture the island, but they were also defeated in 1798. The slaves won their independence in 1804 and the island was renamed 'Haiti'.
1795	The Second Maroon War (Jamaica)
1804	'Haiti' won independence.
1807	The Slave Trade was abolished in England. It is estimated that Britain had transported 3.1 million slaves since 1562 and had profited over £1 billion in today's money.
1816	Bussa's Rebellion, Barbados. It was crushed within 3 days and ended in 114 executions.
1831	Sam Sharpe's Christmas Rebellion in Jamaica. Although this failed and Sharpe was executed, this and other rebellions slowly convinced people that slavery was wrong. This rebellion sparked debates in Parliament.
1833	Slavery was abolished in the British Empire. As part of the Abolition Act in 1833, British slave owners were given a total of £20 million in compensation. This is the equivalent of £17 billion in today's money. 46,000 slave owners received a share of the compensation money. The British public continued to pay this loan back into the government's budget until 2015
1865	Slavery was abolished in America.
